In the spirit of this anything-but-ordinary year, we're shaking things up with the fifth installment of our annual Top Denver Design contest. The following pages include our first-ever Editors' Choice and Readers' Choice awards, a comprehensive list of Denver's 46 best design resources—from where to buy one-of-a-kind antiques to who to call for new hardwood flooring. (Our editorial team's picks are listed and annotated first, followed by the winning shops and services chosen by our style-savvy readers.) And if that's not enough to jumpstart the home-makeover plans you whipped up during your recent time at home, we're also sharing five of the most stunning residential spaces in and around the Mile High City [<https://www.5280.com/?p=187827>]. Get ready for inspiration overload.

2020 has a lot of explaining to do, but at least it's given us CODA Studio, which opened in Cherry Creek North in February. The home furnishings showroom—the Malibu-born company's first outpost—offers bespoke modern pieces that showcase excellent craftsmanship, natural textures, and exotic woods. The shop exudes a kind of beach-meets-mountains vibe, enhanced with a small, smart collection of accessories and art from top-notch local and national sources. (We're especially fond of the handwoven Bali baskets and Joshua Tree blankets made near the beloved national park.) Best of all, you can get your customized furnishings within 6–8 weeks—typical shops take about twice as long to deliver the goods—and CODA offers design services if you need some help choosing from its many gorgeous offerings. 248 Detroit St., 720-610-7727
